CONNECT AND ENGAGE

Build relationships and make a difference

Small class sizes allow for engaging conversation and collaboration with peers and faculty, further developing your political and government understanding from an analytical and data-driven perspective. You will be prepared to confidently address research questions and recognize what drives political processes.

“Politics is the master science... Since it uses the other practical sciences and legislates about what must be done and what must be avoided, its end will be...the human good. ...For while it may content us to acquire and preserve this [good] for an individual alone, it is nobler and more divine to do so for a nation and polity.”

Aristotle
Nichomachean Ethics, Book 1
