

NSF Requiring New Format for Researcher Bio

Starting on October 23, 2023, all NSF grant and contract applications must include a research bio created through the SciENCv system, an online biographical sketch program. The system is available now and is integrated with other research-related systems that you can access it through. It also helps with development of some other federal grant application bios and related grant documents. For more information on SciENCv, click the link below to SRS's info page and scroll down to open the subsection titled "Building a SciENCv Biosketch from Existing Profiles – 05/18/23".
