COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND ASSESSMENTS

INDIVIDUAL COURSE COMPONENTS

Participation and contribution to the online class
Regular participation in class discussions are assessed. Specifically, students are expected to comment on, question, and challenge their colleagues presenting discussion forum topics and case studies in class.

Discussion forum questions
There will be a total of 8 discussion topics. In each designated forum you must post at least one main message that answers the question(s) raised. You will also comment on at least two posts from your fellow learners, providing substantive feedback. In total, you are required to post a total of three messages per discussion topic in order to receive credit for each forum: one opening point of 150 to 200 words and two counterpoints of 100 to 200 words each. Be succinct and not repetitive with what others have written. Brevity and originality improve dialogue. Quality postings are more than "Good job!" or "I agree with you!". If you agree with a classmate, explain your reasoning. If you disagree with a classmate, provide reasons to support your position.

Each post to the forum should be a 1-2 well-written paragraph(s) per question. Do not use any attachments. I recommend typing your posts in a word document (this allows you to proofread) and then cut/paste questions/responses directly in a forum message. Be sure to restate the question you are answering. Effective messages get to the point, are clearly stated, and are limited to one screen. Once again proofread and ensure you spell correctly use appropriate grammar. Messages should relate to the relevant subject matter. They should provide information, opinions, or questions about course concepts. Online discussions work best when interaction occurs. Reply messages should explore, explain, or expand on a concept. If a classmate replies or objects to a discussion, the message has served its purpose. A focused message that induces replies from fellow students moves the discussion forward and enhances learning. Relating the subject matter to personal experience is acceptable as long as the focus remains academic in nature. It is of utmost importance that you post and respond promptly, otherwise comments will seem out of context. Postings/insights on the discussion topic should:

a. Apply course concepts,
b. Articulate an analysis clearly,
c. Integrate your colleagues’ contributions, leading discussion to a deeper level of understanding, and
d. Use references if you cite another author, your textbook, or any ideas that are not originally your own.

Case Studies

There will be short case studies in this course. Each student presents one case to the entire class for discussion. As a group, these case studies support all 13 SLOs (listed above). Once you decide which cases are most interesting to you on the course schedule, email your instructor your top 3 case preferences. Assignments will be made on a first-come, first-served basis aiming to meet all preferences (when possible).

Presenter/author

This case presentation will be uploaded for all participants to watch/hear and must be open for commentary/questions/discussion. All other colleagues will then submit questions and commentary to further the case discussion. All submissions — both the case presentation and participation—figure into final grades. After addressing the issues/questions raised by colleagues, the case presenters will then submit a written presentation of the case incorporating feedback they received. Each written presentation of the case study should be two pages in length, single spaced) using the following outline:

I. Summary of case facts
II. Statement of problem/issue
III. Alternative solutions
IV. Recommendation
V. Implications/learning points/takeaways

Commentator/Discussant/Challenger role

All students are expected to actively participate with the case presentations. In the role as commentator/discussant/challenger, students will submit questions and commentary to further the discussion about the case that has been presented. In most cases, a primary discussant will be assigned to each case, and s/he will be the leader of the discussion with the presenter. However all colleagues will be judged by their active contribution to the online case discussion during that particular week. Much like the online discussion questions above, it is important to be clear, concise, and contextualized with your commentary. Remain curious about the case organization and try to guide the group towards a deeper level of understanding about the topic. Due to the dynamic nature of the online case discussions and the tight timeframe within which we must work, it is important that everyone schedules time to be active within the scope of the assigned week to participate in the online case discussion.

Article summaries: Review of literature

Each student will complete five (5) written thorough article reviews as you prepare your term paper.

As graduate students, it is vital for you to be develop your skills to find, read, comprehend, and apply state-of-the-art research on a specific topic. In this course, you will review recent literature on a sustainability topic of your choosing. Each student will complete five written article summaries as s/he prepares for the team term paper submission and presentation. As a group, these five article summaries support all 13 SLOs listed in this syllabus. Articles must be original research published in peer-reviewed journals. Each written article summary should be two pages using the following outline:

I. Title
II. Citation (APA format)
III. Purpose
IV. Constructs / Variables investigated
V. Methodology
VI. Results
VII. Implications
VIII. Suggestions for further research

Exam (100 points)

A midterm exam on material covered will be held (format: multiple choice, short answer, and essay questions).

GROUP COURSE COMPONENTS (300 points)

Team term paper (250 points)

Your team term paper (3-4 students) assignment is to choose a topic of your interest within sustainability and analyse it in a data-driven manner. For example, you could study a company and conduct a firm-level analysis. In this case, your team could assess various functional areas within the case firm, (e.g. finance, operations, marketing, etc.) and document the issues associated with one-planet sustainability for those functional areas and recommended a course of action for the future. The best topics of study usually emerge from the collective resources of your team. Therefore, your team should from the first meeting begin working to formulate your research question.

By deadline, submit team names and a draft of your research question/problem formulation (50 points).

The finished report should be 30+ pages. The bibliography and citations should be in APA format. In addition to the 30+ pages, the report should have a cover sheet, table of contents, works cited, and an appendix, if needed, with appropriate exhibits at the end. The number of SLOs supported by the term paper—and the degree to which they are supported—will naturally vary by topic chosen, but nevertheless most of the SLOs listed in this syllabus will be supported as a matter of course.

Grading Polices/Guidelines

• Student participation: We learn from sharing our experience, reflections, and ideas while simultaneously listening to input from others. We all enter the classroom with a wealth of knowledge and it is vital to our learning that we maintain a respectful and civilized classroom. Your contribution to class discussion is important and valued.

• Online participation: Regular participation is critical for your understanding and mastery of the material as well as to your understanding of assignment and project requirements. If you must be inactive for legitimate reasons, please inform me in advance.

• Individual Performance: It is vital that you are active in the course and complete all work in a professional fashion. You are expected to read all assigned chapters as well as any relevant supplemental resources.

• Quality Work: All work submitted for grading must be upper level quality, demonstrating understanding and effort, clear and concise thinking, an appropriate depth of analysis, conveyed in a professional style.

• Spelling, grammar, and writing skills for reports: You will be evaluated on the content of all written assignments, provided that your spelling and grammar have no major issues. While a few spelling and grammar mistakes are acceptable and will not affect your grade, I reserve the right to remove of up 10% of the points of a written assignment for excessively bad grammar and needless spelling mistakes. Students who proofread their work, use spelling and grammar checking tools, or obtain help from the University Writing Center (described above) should not be affected by this policy.

• Submission nomenclature: Submissions should use this format: StudentLastName_Title_of_the_assignment

• Submission Style Requirements: Submissions will be in accordance with The Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 6th ed. All written work must be submitted utilizing Microsoft Word in either a .doc or .docx format.

• Due Dates and Late Submissions: The assignment instructions and deadlines are clearly laid out in the syllabus. As such, it is expected that all work will be submitted on time, as timeliness is an important aspect of professional communications and behavior. If you encounter an issue, please let me know before the due date. Late submissions of written assignments will cost -20% of the grade per day.

• Changes to Syllabus: This syllabus serves as an instructional and study planning document. Although every effort will be made to maintain the schedule and activities presented herein, it may become necessary to make changes to the syllabus. Changes will be announced in writing as soon as possible.

• Sundown rule: Students have one week (from the date the grade is released) to enquire about a grade on any assignment. The exception to this is the last round of assignments and your final grade. Inquiries must be sorted soon as possible before final grades are submitted to the Registrar.

Grading Criteria Rubric and Conversion
A grading rubric will be available with the assignment instructions and submission locations in Canvas. Minimum points required for a specific course grade are noted on the table under grade computation in the next section. Minimum points required for a specific course grade will NOT be revised for any reason. Students should not expect/request rounding, curving, or extra credit. There are 1000 grading points available in this class, assigned as follows:

University Library

The University Library provides many services in support of research across campus and at a distance. We offer over 200 electronic databases containing approximately 250,000 eBooks and 82,000 journals, in addition to the 85,000 items in our print collection, which can be mailed to students who live more than 50 miles from campus. Research guides for each subject taught at A&M-Central Texas are available through our website to help students navigate these resources. On campus, the library offers technology including cameras, laptops, microphones, webcams, and digital sound recorders.

Research assistance from a librarian is also available 24 hours a day through our online chat service, and at the reference desk when the library is open. Research sessions can be scheduled for more comprehensive assistance, and may take place on Skype or in-person at the library. Assistance may cover many topics, including how to find articles in peer-reviewed... journals, how to cite resources, and how to piece together research for written assignments. Our 27,000-square-foot facility on the A&M-Central Texas main campus includes student lounges, private study rooms, group work spaces, computer labs, family areas suitable for all ages, and many other features. Services such as interlibrary loan, TexShare, binding, and laminating are available. The library frequently offers workshops, tours, readings, and other events. A Note about Sexual Violence at A&M-Central Texas Sexual violence is a serious safety, social justice, and public health issue. The university offers support for anyone struggling with these issues. University faculty are mandated reporters, so if someone discloses that they were sexually assaulted (or a victim of Domestic/Dating Violence or Stalking) while a student at TAMUCT, faculty members are required to inform the Title IX Office. If you want to discuss any of these issues confidentially, you can do so through Student Counseling (254-501-5955) located on the second floor of Warrior Hall (207L). Sexual violence can occur on our campus because predators often feel emboldened, and victims often feel silenced or shamed. It is incumbent on ALL of us to find ways to actively create environments that tell predators we don’t agree with their behaviors and tell survivors we will support them. Your actions matter. Don’t be a bystander; be an agent of change. For additional information on campus policy and resources visit the Title IX webpage [https://www.tamuct.edu/departments/compliance/titleix.php].
