Course Description and Objectives:
This course will examine issues in American history through the study of witchcraft including gender, race, and class. A majority of the class will be an intense look at the Salem Witch Hysteria in 1692. The class will also cover other cases of witchcraft in the Atlantic World and how society viewed and dealt with the supernatural. Instruction will include lectures, group work, readings, videos and discussions. Personal opinions and perspectives are both welcomed and desired in the class discussions; however, students are expected to know the issues and interpretations presented in the readings and the lectures. Ultimately, the course provides an introduction to the histories of gender, race, and religion in the age of colonization, while providing a lens into the interaction of European and non-European cultures in Colonial America and the ways that history has rewritten the memory of these events for modern spectators today.

This is an upper level course in American history designed for all students, no matter what their major or minor. History helps us to not only understand the past, but to make informed decisions in the present, by appreciating how previous generations have dealt with crisis, conflict, dissent, gender, race, and religion in numerous ways.

In addition to content issues, the practice of history also teaches and sharpens numerous skills that all students, no matter what their eventual career paths, need to master to compete in the 21st century world. Critical reading skills, writing proficiency, research methods, document analysis, public speaking, and argument formation are all skills that will be dealt with in this course.

The course objectives are therefore:
- To draw connections between the past and the present.
- To understand historical debates.
- To work with primary documents and develop an understanding of how historians use documents to interpret the past.
- To critically analyze a historical text.
- To write clear and coherent essays that develop a historical argument.
Required Texts

There will be other articles and book chapters that the Professor will provide electronically each week.

Attendance and Participation

Class attendance and participation are crucial elements of the learning experience. Attendance is your responsibility. Your participation each week consists completing the modules each which includes readings, video lectures, and an open forum. The open forums are where you can ask questions about the modules.

Exams

There will be one exam in this class. The exams for this class will be cumulative, although they will reflect persistent themes, ideas, and terminology that run throughout the class. The exams will be essays.

Writing Assignments

The two book reviews will be 900-1100 words long and be modeled after critical reviews in academic journals such as the American Historical Review or The William and Mary Quarterly. A book review concentrates on identifying and critiquing on the author’s thesis. What is the author trying to argue, what evidence do they use, and do you agree and disagree? It is not just a simple summary of the book. Please see the outline. Also the University Writing Center also has a copy.

Video Project

Each student make a ten minute video based on an individual from the Salem Witchcraft Trials. Please use the digital history archives: http://salem.lib.virginia.edu/home.html for research. Students must write a three page script of the video along with PowerPoint and video. I would recommend using the Studio in Canvas and the Screen Capture to make the video. More information will be in the Video Project Module.
Important Reminder
Late Papers will not be accepted.

_FORMATTING

Essays must comply with the following formatting guidelines. Writing assignments are due at the beginning of class on the date indicated.

Your papers must be typewritten, with 12 pt. font in Times New Roman and double-spaced lines. The header of your paper should be single-spaced and in the following format:

Your paper should have 1” margins on the top and bottom and 1.25” margins on the left right margins. Evidence must be cited using footnotes. Use of alternate forms of citation, such as the MLA format, is not acceptable. Finally, your essays must be stapled (no “dog ears,” paper clips, or binders) and the pages numbered!
