COURSE INFORMATION

Why study services marketing?

The U.S., as well as much of the world economy, is dominated by services. In the U.S., approximately 81% of the labor force and 81% of the GDP is accounted for by services. Nearly all the new job growth in this country will be in service organizations in the coming decade. Moreover, many traditional manufacturing firms are extending their product mix to include services in order to provide added value to customers and provide a source of sustainable competitive advantage to the firm – for example, IBM now promotes itself as "the largest service 2 business in the world," bringing in $48 billion in revenue from services, more than half the company's total revenue. Yet traditionally, many business courses have focused solely on the manufacturing sector of the economy.

Marketers only started considering services firms as distinct entities in the late 1970s, and serious research into the challenges of services marketing didn't start until the mid-1980s. But, selling and delivering a tangible good is not the same as selling and delivering a service that solves a customer's problem. It's now recognized that marketing and managing services requires a distinctive approach to business strategy and uses a specialized language and set of marketing tools. University curricula have only recently begun to catch up to the trend – Texas A&M University Central Texas is among only a handful of universities worldwide that now offers a course in Services Marketing to its undergraduate students. Training in services marketing will help set A&M-Central Texas graduates apart from those of other universities, making them more competitive on the job market, as well as more effective in their jobs and thus more valuable to their future employers. Therefore, this course is designed for marketing students (and others in related fields) who may be interested in working in service industries and in addressing the unique needs and challenges of managing services and delivering quality service to customers.

This course will build and expand on basic marketing principles (from MKTG 3301 and other courses) to adapt and apply those principles to solve service marketing problems.

Course Objectives:

By the end of this course you should be able to:

- Identify the unique characteristics of services that distinguish them from tangible goods, and identify the differences between marketing in services firms vs. manufacturing organizations.
- 2. Appreciate and explain the role of both employees and customers in service delivery and customer satisfaction.
- effectively describe and utilize key services frameworks and concepts including the "3 Ps of Services," the Gaps Model, customer co-production, customer satisfaction, loyalty, and customer lifetime value.
- 4. Identify and predict potential sources of service failure, and design appropriate approaches for service recovery.

- 5. Design and refine service operations from the customer point-of-view, using services blueprinting.
- 6. Articulate pricing strategies for services and understand how those differ from pricing of goods.
- 7. Understand how services can be used to create a competitive advantage in manufacturing organizations.
- 8. Become better, more aware, and maybe less naïve service customers.

A Note about Sexual Violence at A&M-Central Texas

Sexual violence is a serious safety, social justice, and public health issue. The university offers support for anyone struggling with these issues. University faculty are mandated reporters, so if someone discloses that they were sexually assaulted (or a victim of Domestic/Dating Violence or Stalking) while a student at TAMUCT, faculty members are required to inform the Title IX Office. If you want to discuss any of these issues confidentially, you can do so through Student Wellness and Counseling (254-501-5955) located on the second floor of Warrior Hall (207L).

Sexual violence can occur on our campus because predators often feel emboldened, and victims often feel silenced or shamed. It is incumbent on ALL of us to find ways to actively create environments that tell predators we don't agree with their behaviors and tell survivors we will support them. Your actions matter. Don't be a bystander; be an agent of change. For additional information on campus policy and resources visit the Title IX webpage [https://www.tamuct.edu/compliance/titleix.html].

Behavioral Intervention

Texas A&M University-Central Texas cares about the safety, health, and well-being of its students, faculty, staff, and community. If you are aware of individuals for whom you have a concern, please make a referral to the Behavioral Intervention Team. Referring your concern shows you care. You can complete the referral online
