COURSE INFORMATION

Course Overview and description

This course provides the foundational basis for understanding the body's physiological responses to physical activity. This course will focus on acute responses and chronic physiologic adaptations to physical activity, including some of the static and dynamic factors that influence such responses and adaptations. Areas covered include energy transfer during rest and exercise, physiologic and performance adaptations of the cardiovascular, respiratory and neuromuscular systems.

Course Objective or Goal

The purpose of this course is to increase the student's knowledge and understanding of the physiological adaptations that occur during exercise. Emphasis will be applied to the cardiovascular, respiratory, and neuromuscular systems.

Student Learning Outcomes

1. Understand the importance of bioenergetics (energy transformation) on exercise response and health.
 - a. Recognize the substrates utilized by each energy system and the process of substrate depletion and repletion depending on the activity.
2. Understand the importance of energy systems on exercise response and health.
 - a. Describe the systems responsible for energy metabolism at rest and during exercise.
3. Compare and contrast metabolic pathways that are active during any form of movement in a healthy person (e.g. aerobic, anaerobic).
4. Understand the acute physiological changes that occur during exercise for the cardiovascular system.
5. Understand the acute physiological changes that occur during exercise for the respiratory system.
6. Understand the acute physiological changes that occur during exercise for the neuromuscular system.
7. Understand the cardiovascular adaptations that occur following exercise training.
8. Understand the respiratory system adaptations that occur following exercise training.
9. Understand the neuromuscular system adaptations that occur following exercise training.

10. Understand the health and physiological benefits of regular exercise.

OPTIONAL POLICY STATEMENTS

A Note about Sexual Violence at A&M-Central Texas

Sexual violence is a serious safety, social justice, and public health issue. The university offers support for anyone struggling with these issues. University faculty are mandated reporters, so if someone discloses that they were sexually assaulted (or a victim of Domestic/Dating Violence or Stalking) while a student at TAMUCT, faculty members are required to inform the Title IX Office. If you want to discuss any of these issues confidentially, you can do so through Student Wellness and Counseling (254-501-5955) located on the second floor of Warrior Hall (207L).

Sexual violence can occur on our campus because predators often feel emboldened, and victims often feel silenced or shamed. It is incumbent on ALL of us to find ways to actively create environments that tell predators we don't agree with their behaviors and tell survivors we will support them. Your actions matter. Don't be a bystander; be an agent of change. For additional information on campus policy and resources visit the Title IX webpage [<https://www.tamuct.edu/compliance/titleix.html>].

Behavioral Intervention

If you are aware of individuals for whom you have a concern, please make a referral to the Behavioral Intervention Team. Referring your concern shows you care. You can complete the referral online [https://cm.maxient.com/reportingform.php?TAMUCentralTexas&layout_id=2].
